By Kenneth E. Archambault
Used this to drive all around Peninsular Malaysia. I did not use GPS. The road names are written in Malay, and often the highway numbers seemed different from those on the map! Also, the printed directions I took along to various destinations seemed to be identified differently on the map and in person. Nonetheless, with the aid of an old-fashioned compass on the seat next to me, I never got lost, except a minor detour in downtown Johor Bahru, and the map was very useful in orienting myself while driving solo throughout the country. Reasonable price also.
