Mr Tom W Burnett : Pints, Pyramids and Palestinians: A supermarket worker in the Middle East before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Pints, Pyramids and Palestinians: A supermarket worker in the Middle East:

After making it out of the Balkans, Britains worst supermarket worker/traveller decided it was time to choose a more peaceful and stable place to take his fortnight off work and where better than the Middle East? As such the man, who any reasonable country wouldnt even grant a passport, travelled to Syria, Lebanon, Jordan, Israel and Egypt. On this largely pointless journey he visits some of the amazing sights the region has to offer such as Petra, the Pyramids and the Old City of Damascus, but also gets to meet exciting locals such as the fat Israeli guy who decided he was a threat to the future of the Jewish state. As well as the fake Egyptian policeman and the Syrian bus station attendant he suspected was a member of the secret police (or he might just have been there to mop the floor, hard to say)
