It is not necessarily the best written novel, but the subject matter, and the detail provided in the book really elevates it. The expedition was a spectacular achievement and the book does a great job accounting for it, as well as the unsuccessful 1992 attempt. I found it to be a fascinating read, and it's still one of my favorites. 5 of 5 people found the following review helpful. Incredible adventure story

What an exciting and amazing story this is! Against all odds these very strong and tenacious adventurers have skied across a nearly impassable collection of mobile ocean ice to the North Pole and back under conditions of extreme cold - as cold as -72 degrees! All supplies for 4 months for this completely self-sufficient expedition were carried in backpacks and dragged along in sleds. Their pre-trip planning was so complete they knew in advance when every morsel of food would be consumed! That totaled enough for a daily calorie allotment was 7000 calories. To eat less would incur a dangerous loss of strength. The book is well written and very exciting. It kept me riveted to my seat until I finished reading it. When I was done, I felt as if I had been part of the adventure - except I was still warm and comfortable, with no aching muscles!

Speedy shipping and a very interesting book! Makes you appreciate the creature comforts of home!

On June 15, 1995, Weber and Malakhov became the first people to complete the 1,000-mile round trip to the North Pole on foot with no outside support. Their triumph of having reached the North Pole was followed by a dangerous 31-hour marathon through a blizzard to reach their camp--six kilometers away--where they had left all their supplies and equipment. This book presents the gripping tale of their determination to complete this historic expedition. of color photos.
